Over three decades Dan Evans has built a niche career as a world-class exponent on both the mountain dulcimer and acoustic guitar. In concert he presents a repertoire of traditional folk songs and airs from the British Isles, imaginative and atmospheric original compositions and the odd classic song to round a set off nicely. All are arranged in Dan's unique, thoughtful style and presented with considerable classical skill and a spoonful of English humour. With five CD albums released to critical international acclaim and sixteen international tours to date, Dan has won the hearts of audiences on both sides of the Atlantic.

Three main qualities define Dan Evans as an individually stylish and hugely accomplished musician: uncompromising originality, intelligent innovation and a constant striving for excellence. Often directly inspired by nature itself, Dan's music makes no attempt to emulate other artists nor to be confined to a single genre. Playing exclusively finger-style, Dan's original arrangements incorporate elements of jazz and medieval music with frequent rhythm changes and expressive timing variations.

Unusually, Dan's dulcimers only have 3 strings and diatonic scales with no half-frets and are typically tuned to Ionian mode, commonly called DAA. His guitars are tuned to Open C tuning and to Dan's own temperament, not to a chromatic tuner. These innovations, combined with subtle and highly musical use of programmable digital effects, allow Dan to create unique and rich signature sounds. Dan's instruments are bespoke and hand-crafted by expert luthiers and his CD albums are produced with the highest production values and are professional distributed globally.
